

The Bank Defalcation in St. Louis.

George O. Atterton, the teller of the St. Louis Bank of St. Louis, who was arrested a few days ago, charged with being a defaulter for $2,475,000, has made a confession, stating that he loaned $17,000 of it to a firm in that city. Atterton and the firm referred to have since secured the bank from loss, by notes and transfers of property. The St. Louis Democrat says:

The manner of this defalcation and the mode of concealment adopted are now and ingenious. Mr. Atterton, when he desired to abstract money, would put the deposit ticket and money in his private drawer, so that the deposit ticket, not being on file, the bookkeeper, of course, could not enter on the ledger that amount. These discrepancies between the depositor's bank-book and the individual ledger could not be found out, until the bank-book was sent to be balanced; when Mr. A., always on the lookout for those books, would make out a deposit ticket for the amount he had retained on that account, and put it on the file to be credited. But in doing this he would put in his drawer the deposit ticket and money of the depositor of that day. In this way he took money and used them, which he never allowed to be credited to the parties until there was a necessity for it to save exposure. Atterton is a man of family, and lived in an elegant style.

Winchester and Strasburg Connection.

Col. Nason Baure, a candidate for the State Senate in Rockingham and Pendleton counties, says, in the event of his election, "I would strenuously oppose granting the right of way to the Winchester and Potomac Railroad Company to connect their improvement with the Manassas Gap at this time, or at least until the Manassas Gap Company have means sufficient to complete their work to the town of Harrisonburg, for the reason that, should the General Assembly fail to make an appropriation to our Manassas Gap Road (which, I hope, she will not fail to do) and the Company should be thrown upon their own resources for the purpose of carrying on the work, I ask whether it would not be wrong to grant the right of way, and thereby divert the aid and travel and throw it upon another improvement and necessarily prevent an early completion of Manassas to its present terminus."

Hon. Robert C. Winthrop.

This distinguished orator and statesman is expected in Richmond this week, and will deliver an address at the African Church, by invitation of the Young Men's Christian Association. The people of the South very justly have a high regard for the men of the North whose patriotism is not limited to the narrow confines of their own towns and hamlets, and is beyond the influence of motives such as guide the present leaders of that section; they are always ready to attest their admiration for such men by a hospitality as cordial and generous as it is real and heartfelt, whenever they come this way.

Mr. Winthrop belongs to this class of Northern public men, whose conservatism upon the great question which now divides the country, like that of Everett, is conspicuous amid the freedom and almost universal defection of that section, and we doubt not that his reception here, will prove to him the sincerity of our regard.—Rich. Examiner.

Fools not all Dead.

Seven companies left Leavenworth recently for the mines. Some were well provided, and will have a pleasant trip; others had a moderate outfit, and will probably get through in safety. But one company embraced an amount of fool-hardiness, owing to recent record. The company consisted of about a half-dozen fellows, with blankets, picks, and pans strapped to their backs. Their entire lot of provisions consisted of forty pounds of crackers and a quantity of salt—the latter being barely sufficient to preserve the former, in case it was not eaten. On being asked how they expected to make the trip of five hundred miles with their ridiculous outfit, one of them replied, "That's easy enough. We intend to kill enough game, and sleep in barns." Verily, the fools are not all dead.

DEATH OF A SISTER OF CHARITY.—"Sister Catharine," attached to the sisterhood of Charity in Richmond, breathed her last on Monday, after a brief illness, a victim to speedy consumption. She was even yet in the prime of years, but had spent a life from girlhood in doing good. Her was a duty to comfort the afflicted and minister to the orphan and the needy, and most generous of her did Sister Catharine perform her Christian duty of love and usefulness. She was a daughter of a true and devoted and enthusiastic religion's sake. She was brought up at the Knottsville Institution, and was, for nine years, attached to the community. Her own name was Catharine Keaty. She was pious, good, pure and charitable; intelligent and forbearing, loved by all who knew her, and an ornament to intellect, industry, and devotion. "Of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."—Rich. Exp.

CEREMONIAL OBSERVANCE.—This morning, at 8 o'clock, the interesting ceremony of an ordination to the Priesthood, will take place at the Catholic Church in this city.

The gentleman who enters this sacerdotal state is Mr. R. H. Andrews, (formerly of Alexandria.) He graduated with marked distinction at the Presbyterian school in Princeton, N. J., but soon after settled to embrace the doctrine of the Catholic Church. During the last three years he has studied divinity and theology, in this city, under the guidance of the Rev. Bishop McGill and Rev. John Tieding. Mr. Andrews is a young gentleman of high ability, and possessing today, the full ordination power of a soldier of the cross, will prove himself true to his promises.—Richmond Enquirer.

FEDERAL COURT.—The Spring term of the Circuit Court of the United States commenced, in this city, yesterday. A Grand Jury having been duly empaneled, proceeded to the institution of the cases sent before it, and found true bills of indictment against M. S. McDonald, for the murder of John Gordon, on board the American bark, Susan W. Lind, at sea, on the 6th of December, 1856. Frank Shands, a slave, for robbing the mail between Petersburg and Weldon, and Amy, slave, for a similar offence committed in Henry county.

CONFIRMATION.—We understand that there were ninety-six persons confirmed in the various Episcopal Churches on Sunday. Bishops Johns and Meade were in attendance, and administered the rite with the usual sanctity of the Church.—Rich. Examiner.

The crop of wheat on one of Capt. Lambert's fields in Norfolk county, Va., commenced to head more than a week ago, and other evidence of the remarkably advanced condition of vegetation this season.

The Grand Council of the Order of Red Men for this State, will meet in Richmond on the 11th of May.

W. W. Townes was elected Mayor of Petersburg on Monday.

To the editors of the Richmond Enquirer.

GENTLEMEN: AS it is probable, that not one in a thousand will read the recent letter of Gov. Wise in relation to the admission of Territories into the Union, the power and duties of Congress in the premises, and the rights of the Territories themselves, owing to its extreme length, I would respectfully suggest that you insert such a resume, or synopsis of the Governor's positions, in a short space, so that those who agree with or dissent from his opinions, can, if they choose, refer to his reasoning, and judge for themselves. Generally, I have found myself along side of Gov. Wise, and I think, after reading this letter—which I acknowledge has been something of a task, may have hitherto been wandering in error as to the subjects discussed, will be apt to coincide with the wisdom and ability and patriotism of the Governor, and to regret that you insert such a resume, or synopsis of the Governor's positions, in a short space, so that those who agree with or dissent from his opinions, can, if they choose, refer to his reasoning, and judge for themselves.
